

MEMO FROM
J. LEDERBERG
GENETICS DEPARTMENT
STANFORD UNIVERSITY
STANFORD, CALIFORNIA

TO:
Stan Rogers

TX
RC
RO

---

NOV 3 1969

---

I might think you want to first try the interactions of the virus with the mutant kids' cells in culture -- but perhaps this is precisely what you do have in mind.

P.S. Furthermore, there might be a number of other viruses that also code for arginase, but which have not revealed this yet a/c the normal background level. E.G., if you found that SV-40 did this, who could object to using it therapeutically!